Office of Robert E. Lee.

In the basement of the chapel of Washington and Lee university at Lexington, Va., the office of Robert E. Lee, formerly president of that institution, is preserved exactly as he left it on the morning he occupied it for the last time. Not a book, a letter or paper has ever been disturbed. Once or twice a year the room is dusted but it kept shuttered all the time, and into its sacred precincts very few visitors are admitted. His remains are entombed across the hall in a marble sarcophagus.

Court Items.

There was little going on about the Court House yesterday beside the ordinary routine work of the various offices. No new cases made their appearance upon the docket and in the Probate Office there was not even a marriage license issued. As Clerk Schramm expressed it, this lack of interest on the part of prospective bridegrooms was due to the uncertainty which may have prevailed over the result of the election.

The victim of the first hazing incident of the year at Rutgers college, New Brunswick, N. J., is B. F. Shively, a freshman, of Troy, N. Y. Shively was on his way to the house of his sweetheart, who lives in Somerset street, nearly opposite the children's industrial home, when he was stopped by a band of sophomores. He wore evening dress. Shively was marched to a secret place and divested of his apparel. The sophomores knew where Shively was bound, and one of them said: "It's a shame to disappoint a girl like this."
"Yes," said another; "let's take him there anyway."
"But we can hardly take him there in that shape," said the first, nodding to Shively, who was shivering in nothing.
They gave Shively a suit which looked as though it had been cast away by a tramp. Then a packing box full of excelsior was procured, and Shively was fastened in the box and packed tight. His cheeks were painted with muck and excelsior stuck to them for whiskers. Then, with his head just showing above the top of the box, Shively was borne to his original destination.
The box was deposited on the front porch of the young woman's home. Not being able to free himself, Shively waited until his friends in the house discovered his predicament. It happened that a junior was calling on the young woman, and he released Shively and escorted him home. The next day the clothing taken from the young man was returned to him through the agency of the juniors, who hold the secret of who the hazers were.

Freshman at Rutgers College Stripped of His Evening Dress by Festive Sophomores, and Arranged in Cast-Off Clothing.

CAME BACK IN STYLE.

How a Young West Virginian Returned from the Klondike Lush with Money.

"Jimmy" Adams has returned to Berkeley Springs, W. Va., from the Klondike. He has also created a sensation by his spectacular arrival. When he left the town three years ago he went with nothing and on a freight train. He returned the other day in a private car, hauled by a leased locomotive, and brought with him nearly $500,000 in gold and papers representing mining possessions worth $5,000,000 and prospectively worth ten times as much. When he was back from the north two years ago he had some gold and good prospects, but he had not written home since, and no one was prepared for his return.

At Detroit he tired of ordinary trains and took the best and biggest car he could get at $500 a day, coming along leisurely and stopping at Niagara Falls and New York. When he got to Brunswick he leased an engine to come over the branch line to Berkeley Springs, arriving at the station without a soul in the town expecting him. He had ten big trunks hauled to his father's house and $150,000 gold taken to the bank. A year ago he bought the old folks a fine farm and the other day he gave his father $20,000 to put a house on it. "Jimmy" is a little past 22.

GUILLOTINED HIMSELF.

Deliberate Preparations Which a Demented French Inventor Made to Take His Own Life.

Arthur Charollais, a demented inventor, 40 years old, guillotined himself this week in his laboratory at Mulhouse in Alsace. He had constructed the machine himself. It was an exact duplicate of the legal French guillotine, but was made of costly woods and finely polished.

The triangular knife had engraved on it: "This blade cut Arthur Charollais' neck, October, 1900."
Near the body was found a note reading: "Distribute my belongings among the poor. Demolish this guillotine. It is intended solely for my own private use."

Charollais' servants heard an unfamiliar electric bell suddenly ringing persistently, and rushing to answer it discovered with horror a writhing, headless body, with blood gushing in streams from the neck. The head was in a basket with sawdust where it had fallen.

The suicide had so arranged the knife that its fall started an electric bell.

EXCITES GREAT INTEREST.

English Sporting Blood Aroused Over Challenge of Lipton for the America's Cup.

The prospect of another international yacht race creates no end of anticipation and interest. It is welcomed as a grateful relief to the tragic happenings which have marked the just completed year of Boer warfare. The spirit of opposition which Sir Thomas Lipton encountered among some of his own people last year and the accusations of self-advertisement do not appear likely to be repeated this time, for the bona-fide spirit of his sportsmanship is becoming generally recognized, though the bulk of Englishmen are beginning to believe the cup is in America for good.

Ticking of a Watch.
